

Second floor

The Empresses chamber and antechamber

The second floor of the northern living quarters houses the Empress's bedchamber and antechamber. Visitors can appreciate the contrast between the authentic furniture and wood stove seen here and the modernity of the Imperial kitchens installed on the third floor in the early 20th century.

The Kaiser's bedchamber

On the other side of the castle, the Lorraine room is positioned before the Kaiser's Bedchamber. Look up to see the well known early 20th century frescoes on the vaulted ceiling, featuring an imperial eagle with the Prussian motto. This room contains armour illustrating the ambition of the Hohenzollerns.
